ON A PLEASURE TRIP

Three Jolly Hunters From the Famous Telluride, Col.

CAPTURE OF A FREAK CALF

A Miniature Experience in the Romantic Jackson Hole Country-In the Company of an Outlaw.

Three adventurous spirits set out from Telluride, Col., on the 23d of June in search of wealth, pleasure and adenture. The first named they looked for in vain until one of the party hap-pened to visit Anaconda yesterday, and now they believe that the high road to wealth lies straight ahead of them. The pleasure and adventure they found without difficulty, in fact, like the wealth, the objects of their pilgrimage were strewn along their pathway like providences in the life of a Christian.

travelers are W. J. Hunington of Illinois, F. G. Wilson of New York and N. Harris of West Virginia. The last named gentleman came over from Initions, F. G. Wilson of New York and N. Harris of West Virginia. The last named gentleman came over from Butte on a side trip to see the greatest smelters in the world and the liveliest city in the Northwest. He was guided by Messrs. J. B. Robb and Dan McKay of Butte. After seeing the sights of the city, they were strolling about the streets when suddenly Mr. Harris with the keen eye of the hunter, espied an animal stranger than any he had seen in his journey of 1,400 miles through the fastnesses of the Rocky mountains. The dens of the wild beasts in Jackson's Hole, the forests of the National park contained nothing like it. This curious thing was the two-headed calf which hung in front of Walker & Gibbs' butcher shop on Main street. The monstrosity was born on the ranch of John Furst in Deer Lodge valley and only lived a few hours. The carcass was brought to town and was on exhibition when the West Virginia huntsman saw it. The thing was dead, so he needed not his trusty rifle, but producing a long purse, he carried away the prize for 40 iron dollars. He expects to have the "critter" mounted and will follow Barnum's footsteps to fame and fortune. The calf is a rare freak, both heads are perfectly formed and set on one neck, while midway between them there is a double ear. In color the beastle is white with black spots. Mr. Harris took the malformed specimen to Butte last night, where he expects to secure the services of a tax-tdermist to preserve it.

is resting in Butte from the long journey which has been made from Southern Colorado overland. Horses and pack animals have been their sole dependence for travel and provision. The wonderful scenery, the out-door life, fishing and hunting have furnished the pleasures for which the trip was planned. Adventures came to them as they traveled.

while in the Green river country one night as they sait about the camp fire a voice from the outer darkness startled them. No one had been heard approaching camp, and, intuitively, each hand would have sought a weapon but for the fact that the voice commanded, "Hands un!" So up went three pairs "Hands up!" So up went three pairs of hands, for, when looking away from a fire at night, the darkness is an impenetrable black.

"Who are you?" asked the voice.
"Hunters," saild one in trembling

"What are ye hunting," demanded the man in the dark.

"Gold, game and a good time."

"Ye ain't lookin' fer nothin' else?"

"No," chorused the trio.

"Got anything ter eat, I'm hungry," and there stepped from behind a tree a sunbrowned fellow who scanned each face suspiciously.

"Take down wer hands. I didn't know

"Take down yer hands. I didn't know who ye wuz, and thought I'd find out. I'm up here hunting a little myself."

I'm up here hunting a little myself."

The stranger was given a share of the camp fare, and stayed with them several days. They recognized him when daylight came as Matt Wardner, the bank robber, for whom $6,000 reward is offered, dead or alive. But Mat never parted company with two trusty revolvers, forty-four's, which hung in his belt, and he slept with one eye open. Consequently, they did not try to take him back to civilization. He was thoroughly acquainted with the was thoroughly acquainted with that country and left them one day as suddenly as he came. For a genuine outlaw, they think he was quite a gentleman, because he did not rob them of money or of rations, but enough for one day's turner.

They landed in Jackson's Hole just in They landed in Jackson's Hole just in time to get the full benefit of the Indian scare, which is now known to have been groundless. They did not know this at the time, however, and remained for 10 days at Steele's ranch, where about 60 families gathered, expecting every day to be attacked by the Indians, whom, it was said, had massacred men, women and children. massacred men, women and children. The whole story was without founda-tion. Two Indians were killed and one white man, but this was all there was to a tale which sent a thousand sol-diers on a cross country march.

Four scouts from the party at the fortified ranch in time dispelled all alarm among the settlers, and soon thereafter another Indian scare was

The hunters then continued their journey and passed out of Jackson's Hole and into the National park. Thence they came to Butte, and expect soon to leave there for Idaho, where they will make Gibbonsville headquar-

Murray himself was not able to swear who bit his ear off, and Douglas swore he did not do it. There were several men on the floor at various stages of the proceedings and while the main circus was going on between Douglas and Murray there were one or two sideshows in which others were interested. The cause of the discord was the lack of appreciation on the part of Douglas of the singing of Murray and his friends. A case of disturbance was made against both men. Douglas gave bond, but Murray remained in jail, where he spends his time poulticing the afflicted ear and using his best endeavors to make the amputated lobe grow back on again. amputated lobe grow back on again.

Shoes From the Sheriff's Sale in Butte.

Our shoe buyer got the stock of shoes sold last week in Butte at sheriff's sale We begin selling it Monday, Sept. 16.

All new goods, and very choice, so choice in fact, that every pair would bring full prices, but we don't do business that way, when we get a good thing we share it with our customers.

This lot will be used as a sort of a "boomlet" for our shoe department, kept separate from our regular lines and closed out this week, The prices are: For Ladies. $1, $1.50, $2. For Children. 75c, $1. $1.50.

You are liable to get snaps like this every week. Not shoes every time, but in some of our numerous departments, as we shall make an aggressive campaign this fall, and are after not only the most critical buyers of Anaconda, but of the surrounding towns.

We are large buyers for cash, and get of first hands at same prices that jobber pay thereby saving one profit. Opportunities come to us that do not to smaller houses, as by pooling the purchases for our several stores they ammounted to a quarter of a million, giving us a prestage that secured low prices. Our buyers are all home, and most of the stock in.

This week we shall begin an advance sale of Men's Neckwear. At lot of 500 doz. which was intended to sell at 75c, will go this week at 50c. All the very choicest colorings in Tecks and 4-in-hands.

With every pair of shoes we give a handsome oak box with key to hold pencils and pens for school boys and girls.
